With all the emotional pains that all of us humans suffer for emotional reasons but "loving" is the best thing with which we can fight the evils around us and not be afraid of failure.

When the pleasant warmth of the blood in the veins of the chest pours over your heart suddenly, you realize that there is someone who wants to share with you the glorious experience of loving with "feeling of attachment" in their whole being as another human being who feels the same way you do.

That's when you see that your lover generously gives you the joy of being alive.

Truly, who can be so wonderful and surprising that gives you love generously but also traps you and you, who are always proud of your freedom, suddenly find yourself surrounded and every moment the rope of your lover's love tightens more and more on your soul, and you, who were an elusive mountain deer, now need the caress of your hunter's hands.

And when you understand that your lover's love for you is your spiritual wake-up call to consider yourself a part of the joy flowing in time, that's when you see the hunter of your heart as the savior of your pride, affection and generosity.

That's when you kiss your hunter's rope and trap!

But whatever it is, it's beautiful... and magnificent... 🌻
